The cosmic microwave background radiation is an emission of uniform, black body thermal energy coming from all parts of the sky. The radiation is isotropic to roughly one part in 100,000: the root mean square variations are only 18  $\mu\text{K}$ , after subtracting out a dipole anisotropy from the Doppler shift of the background radiation. The latter is caused by the peculiar velocity of the Earth ...

In physical cosmology and astronomy, dark energy is an unknown form of energy which is hypothesized to permeate all of space, tending to accelerate the expansion of the universe. Dark energy is the most accepted hypothesis to explain the observations since the 1990s indicating that the universe is expanding at an accelerating rate.. Assuming that the standard model of cosmology is correct, the ...

Are there Intergalactic nucleons and radiating energy that can penetrate both, the solar magnetosphere and the terrestrial magnetosphere? Apparently, yes, given that the histogram located above this scheme shows that for each oscillation in the Intensity of the Intergalactic Cosmic Ray, there is an oscillation in the Earth's tropospheric Temperature (also observed in the Mars atmosphere).
